REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT HILL.

The new crop insurance scheme has been brought down. This is a masterplan scheme which will come in effect when each province brings in its own plan.

Under this legislation the Federal government will pay 50% of the administrative costs and 20% of the premium charged to the farmer. 25% of the farmers in any area must come into the scheme. Those who do not have crop insurance will not be eligible for P.F.A.A. and will not have to pay the P.F.A.A. levy.

In effect this bill allows the framework and financial assistance to the Provincial governments to enable them to set up their own schemes. The Province of Manitoba has already stated they will introduce a crop insurance scheme at this session of the Provincial Legislature. In Alberta the Provincial government already has the enabling legislation and could go ahead at an early date.

THREE MEN IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENT.

Three men were early Tuesday morning, at about 12:15, when two cars collided on Highway #57, about 4 miles north of Drayton Valley. Excessive dust conditions are felt to have been contributing factors in the crash.

Injured were two workers on Cascade Drilling Rig, just north of town who were just coming off shift, Walter Machut, with broken wrist and head lacerations, the co-ump of the other car, which was northbound at the time of the collision was Allen Burrows, an architect, working on building plans in Drayton Valley. All three were removed to Drayton Valley Hospital.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
BY Danita Boling

Dear Ben:

Dear Bob:

Your article in last week's paper, titled "Teenage" viewpoint, was extremely interesting and I certainly do not regret your stating your opinions. In fact, I can agree with some of them! From the beginning of the time pattern between youth and adults, there has been somewhat the same.

One generation is going to the dogs and that the other generation has always insisted that the old folks are out of touch with the times. I think you do not understand them. The things that make the difference between your generation and mine are the things that none generation before or after will understand, believe me, but we are not always as you think we are and to accept changes. We have lived through our past experiences, perhaps a bit more than you have yet to meet. For the purpose of answering your article; when I speak of parents I am referring to the Mothers and Fathers of people you are referring to the Mothers and Fathers of people your age every effort to be up to and admire. When I speak of teen agers I refer to those in their teens who are the plain old, plain ordinary kids, a mixture of the good and the bad, the wholesome, a bit of the good and the bad, but not on the average, a pretty regular bunch. In both of the categories of parents and teenagers there are those of no occasion to us are proud but let us emphasize the minority, the ones to what we hope is a more majority, not the minority, the ones to avoid these living people.

In comparison with your grandmother's era things are very different now and they were then. I agree with your grandmother that young people should be praised.
 I'm a bit of it and a bit of praise goes a long way if you're young or old. However, as you grow a bit older you'll discover that self satisfaction is a good feeling too and it is often the best thing that you can receive for being what you are, kind and considerate.
 I agree with you about praise! This old world is just full of people who are much too busy to take the time to sing praises. In grandma's time things went along at a slower pace and the halter sex war and the war today would have been far less different way than you know.
 Their children had no rules and they enforced the, "Whid-they really should be seen and not heard"; "Honor thy Father and Mother"; "Spare the Rod and spoil the child"; "Gratiall rules that were applied and were taken for granted.
 Until young people were enough to be used, their judgment was not taken into account or grand and they were not expected to be a pal to Junior. Dad was busy earning the money for food, clothes and shelter when he needed to be a pa-man and relax in the evenings, I think he was allowed to do so. Fun and physical strain was not allowed to do so. The time he was well and able to make himself if he had the time but he did home work till their heads got to over the books and they were ready and glad to go bed. From the home the child progressed to the school meant getting an education every day for themselves during recreation they figured out for themselves during short recesses and breaks. It was the teacher's job to teach the child and he or she drummed knowledge into the heads whether the student wanted to learn it or not. The teacher was the authority and the young people knew it. They also knew that the teacher felt it behind the teacher in order to do to maintain discipline. After school young men went home to help Dad or do a series of assignment chores. One thing for sure, he didn't sit on the front porch or run around in a sex with his mother or father would the laws. The girls had to show with the crucifix; Silk, satin, fringe, high heels, hat, bag and gloves; by far too much make up. I see the roaring twenties depicted on the T.V. or movie screen. I could melt with embarrassment as I was right in the middle of the puddle. Yes, your generation at least dresses decently, and in better taste for your age. However, when we asked for more freedom and it had been granted, we had been made to realize that with the freedom and making of one's own decisions went the responsibility for one's actions. We accepted that fact and if we made a mess of things we stood on our own two feet and took our punishment without trying to excuse our actions when we were wrong. When you blamed other for their mistakes you had gone the extreme limit but when you blamed others for your mistakes you had committed the unpardonable mistake.

You are so right, Bea, in saying that the trend of today, and the example set by the adults, is to think its smart to be able to "get by" with something. I hope all of the parents of Dawson Valley read and absorbed that idea of yours. Just how do young people know which laws to obey and which authorities to accept when their parents are always in a position to question certain laws? All I can say is, that in those instances the parents are definitely wrong and should remedy their attitude, but if you are old enough to know right from wrong then stick to the right side no matter what you see the adults do. You'll be raising children someday too, remember! I, too, wish that the men we select as our political leaders were the statesmen that they should be but all thru life, Bea, you are going to be exposed and see the good and the bad. We wish if we were out so, but we can't follow you around forever and shield and protect you from life's seamer side. All we can hope to do for your generation is to teach you to recognize the difference between the good and the bad and to make your choice for the good. We are never too old to be disillusioned and distressed when we find our idols have feet of clay, but there are many, many people, happy people, who are honest, fair and charitable and they will make up for the cynicism of the rest. Parents make mistakes which you have recognized in your article. No, they really shouldn't fight in front of the children but home problems are often settled with noisy emotional outbursts that are soon forgotten. If there is a true love in the home I do not think these emotional outbursts will mar a child's spirit. Brothers and sisters fight like cats and dogs, don't they? If you are part of a family then share all of it, the good, the bad, the love, the fun, and the sadness. Its all part of growing up! In your home you will learn your "growing up" lessons with those who love you and will teach you with gentleness and understanding. If you wait to learn these lessons till the world is your instructor then the penalty is great. You can scream, cry and kick and say that none of it is your fault but the world really doesn't care whose fault it is, you own your right to respect or you are left alone, scorned and without friends, no matter how important you may think you are. You are going out into a world full of people, each one dedicated to making a niche for himself. Learn to share the world with others! Perhaps the biggest fault of the parents is in trying too hard to hand your generation a life of "all pleasure" when what you really want is for us to quit playing the dual role of Pal and Parent. Maybe you want and need responsibilities and for us to be the authority you need and to take back the job of being full time parents.

In not too many years, Bea, the world will be in the responsibility of your generation. I wish it was in better condition to turn over to you but we have gone ahead of you have tried and failed in many phases. We wish you the best of luck! When you can prove you are ready, Bea, I'll turn my part of the world over to you, with my blessings! It hasn't been all bad and I've had a lot of happiness in my life just in knowing all kinds of people. Often in a wooden house a golden room is found! I've learned to know myself a lot better than when I was in my teens and the picture I have of my own Mom and Dad is one of warmth and love. I now wonder how they could have possibly loved me during the time of my life when I grew too smart for my own good. Only a Mom and Dad could possibly love us when we are going through that frustrating period. Just remember, do not blame Mom and Dad for everything. They are just 'grown up teenagers' who have lived long enough to have had a few experiences that they would like their children to be spared. So here is to your generation, the generation who will be at the reins when my generation is too old to carry the load. Be wise, be fair, be careful and do the best that you can! Kick your wegens to a star not to a sewer rat!

Here is a recipe for quick Popcorn Balls which you 'younguns' might enjoy. It belongs to Faith Christain who is a whiz at this sort of thing. You should see her make chocolate Easter Eggs. I wish I could give you my Mom's recipe for taffy so we could all have a taffy pull like they used to do in Grimsby. But the secret was in pulling the stuff when it was almost too hot to handle and I was touchy of a sort to learn. Now my Mom could pull taffy! Her hands would be burned pink but the taffy was a melody of sugar, so white, creamy and chewy!

Popcorn Balls.
1 c. corn oil; 1 c. corn (popping variety); 1 c. Karo syrup; 1 c. sugar; 1/2 teas. salt.
Heat oil in a quart skillet—add corn and cover and shake until popping stops. Meanwhile mix syrup, sugar, and salt. Add to popped corn in skillet. Stir and toss until corn is covered completely with moisture. Remove from heat. Butter your hands and form the corn into balls using a little pressure if necessary. Makes 2 1/2 balls and it also makes a nice sticky mess of your hands but its fun!
"It is better to suffer wrong than to do it, and happier to be sometimes cheated than not to trust."
Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Plan Early Start On $45,000,000 Dam

In October, 1956, the announcement was made that survey parties had gone into the remote area south-west of Lodgepole to begin extensive surveys in the Brazeau River area a few miles upstream from the point where that river flows into the North Saskatchewan River. At that time two groups of Calgary Power survey parties went in to the vicinity, one going in by foot from the south, from Rocky Mountain House, and the other going in over a seismic trail from Lodgepole. After extensive surveys in the area for almost three years Calgary Power Ltd., recently announced that an immediate start would be made on the first phase of the huge project, which may eventually cost around 100 million dollars. The initial development is estimated at about 45 million dollars.

The Provincial government is also interested in the undertaking as the project will act as a water-storage dam as well as a hydro power dam. The dam will assure a more uniform flow of water down the North Saskatchewan River in the winter time and will help eliminate the present serious pollution problem which faces the City of Edmonton and the winter time down the river from Edmonton. A road will be built in from Lodgepole, with construction slated to start at once, into the damsite, which is about 20 miles south and west of Lodgepole. The site of the Big Bend dam is about 30 air miles from Drayton Valley. It is expected that construction of the huge earth fill dam and other phases of the project will take about four years.
